

Wilmington, Nov. 7 1881

My Dear Sister and Mrs. May

This is a stormy day here and may be so at Cambridge; but whether this be so or not I hope it is a most happy one for you because you have arrived at home and found all your friends safe and well. This will reach you after those who must have been so eager to welcome you will have had the happiness of having their desires fulfilled, and will therefore I hope not be intrusive. It will at least tell you how much I have thought of you since the 26th ult. and how sincerely I congratulate you on being once more at home.

Mrs. Cauley joins me in this and in the heartiest good wishes for the future.

Ever sincerely,
Yours,

J. M. May